

1.			The reunion offered family members the chance to renew old friendships and to make new ones. Liz wanted to go to the reunion to see Fred and Joe wanted to go to meet his cousins from Oregon.
2.			Angie told Mabel that she could not visit Jennifer anymore. The tension among them was more than she could bear.
3.			Ethel stands in the backyard, reading her newspaper. Her six dogs prowl the shrubbery, sniffing the scent marks left by the neighboring cats.
4.			Gertrude was known for being the school's biggest fan. However, no one knew how powerful Gertrude's admiration was until she began to dress as Mrs. Clinton does.
5.			We did not know what to do when we got to the hotel. We had lost our passports at the airport and were frantic with worry.
6.			The ruins we visited in Tunisia reminded us of the extent of the Roman Empire. It had encompassed most of Europe.
7.			Bert Smith's house which was the oldest in town was scheduled for demolition. Preservationists had failed to stop the developer.
8.			Amy was the best runner on the track team; she ran the half-mile in under two minutes and twenty seconds. Amy is also the school's best debater; she wins all of her tournaments.
9.			When Jill looked through her backpack, she realized that she had forgotten a can opener. Her camping trip would have to be cut short.
10.			No one enjoys cookies more than Fred. His locker is filled with ginger snaps, and his shirt is covered with their crumbs.
11.			He did not know what time it was or where he was. He only knew that he had no more money and that home was a twenty-dollar cab ride away.
12.			Fred's room is messier than any other boy in the neighborhood. His mother found Fred's long-lost cousin under a pile of dirty gym socks.
13.			The coaches' last task was to pick up after their players. Everyone of the athletes had left some part of their uniform on the bus.
14.			There was not much that Fred had to remember, but there was one important thing. He had to give the roses to whomever won the prize.
15.			All Fred had with him was a pair of pliers. Fixing the car's engine would require a set of wrenches and more knowledge than he had.
16.			Harvey could not find his way to the post office. The more he read the directions a friend had given him, the more confused he became.
17.			After Fred checked the alarm, he entered the house. He was happy to find shelter from the raging storm.
18.			The many presents surprised the children, they were filled with delight. Their parents beamed with joy to see their children's reactions.
19.			Jill was late to her best friend's party. Poor Jill had been so absorbed in her homework that she had lost track of time.
20.			When Murray went to the doctor to get his cholesterol checked, he feared the worst. Last weekend at his mother's house he had faced a series of highly saturated meals.
21.			Murray and George had never seen so much snow. The drifts covered some of their first-floor windows.
22.			Fred left work in a state that resembled madness. With no thought of all the errands that his wife had so carefully laid out for him over breakfast.
23.			The examination did much to distinguish those who had been working throughout the semester from those who had not. Few students were surprised by their performances.
24.			If Fred were to give me a compliment, I would collapse on the spot. He is the most self-absorbed person I know.
25.			Attending to class discussions is a good way to improve one's grade; to start taking notes on one's reading is also beneficial. Doing both is terrific.
26.			Not without reason do people call Bronte's Jane Eyre a great work. In that novel Bronte offers a lot of insight into an individual's struggle to define herself within society.
27.			Why Robert cannot get to class on time remains a mystery. Some people claim that Robert gets lost on purpose.
28.			Fred hears the world's most frustrating sound, the roar of a subway train pulling out of the station. He will be late again.
29.			Neither Fred nor Harry want to go to the annual picnic. Last year's picnic had been a disaster.
30.			Running with his dog, John fell and twisted his ankle. He hobbled home and packed his ankle in ice.
31.			To acknowledge the city's support, Charles Lindbergh called his plane "The Spirit of St. Louis." When "Lucky Lindy" flew to Paris St. Louis was filled with pride.
32.			Distracted by noises in the audience, the actor forgot his lines in the middle of his big scene. The other actors had to cover for his lapse.

Space for Rewriting Sentences: (Use the hind side of the paper if necessary)